

A scatter plot illustrating the distribution of Benign (blue) and Adversarial (red) data points. The plot shows a clear separation between the two classes, with Benign points clustered in the center and Adversarial points clustered at the top and bottom edges. The legend indicates that blue circles represent Benign data and red circles represent Adversarial data.

